

COOKING SCHOOL AT FRANKFORT TUES.

SPECIAL DAIRY PROMOTION
MEETING AT GENEVA MAY 24Low Bid Buys Best
Classroom Furniture
For Lincoln-Way

Bids were opened on all the school furniture and class room seating at the last special meeting of the Lincoln-Way board of education. The bid submitted by William J. Borgen, inventor and designer of Waukegan, Ill., amounting to $10,093.25 was accepted and approved.

This furniture was selected by the members after many months study. Several new schools were visited, by both the members and the superintendent, and it was the unanimous opinion that this selection would most nearly fit the school's educational needs.

All furniture is movable and functional, so the teacher can work out the best seating arrangement for the type of instruction desired. All seats and chairs provide for the student's comfort and are designed for correct posture at all times. These seats will encourage a natural upright body position, reducing fatigue and should improve discipline in the classroom. The furniture has adjustable tops and seats.

All furniture will have washable and mar proof tops. The linoleum like appearance will harmonize with the natural finish woods. All seats will be made of a new type plastic, tinted in a light green color.

Some of the class rooms will use the individual tables and chairs to enable the students to work in groups whenever such work is feasible.

A new pattern and style for a typewriter table is being designed by the manufacturer and Superintendent Chapman. A sample is being considered at the present time, and should be far superior to any similar table on the market.

All department chairman employed to date, along with the curriculum director, have been given room lay outs, and they have been given the opportunity to select the best combination of this furniture to fit their respective needs.

The bid price of $10,093.25 was the lowest of three received, the highest bid being $11,923.63.

Education

By Eli Whitney

In a mad rush for education and our enthusiasms for mass education it has been more than over done. Interior students have been kept within our high schools and have more than sprinkled down the educational job that could have been for those students desirous of obtaining an education to fit them for the profession that they most desire.

For many years the teaching profession in many states have been imposed upon especially with regard to salary and in many instances some of our primary teachers more or less as I have been informed compelled in addition to teaching conduct a day nursery.

I am at a loss to understand just why some of our educational institutions are being run on a basis not as scholarly institutions but in many cases a school of athletics. I believe it was Jefferson that once said that each and every child should be given the opportunity and taught to read and write and after that public education should be open to those competent students desiring higher education.

There are many things that our teaching profession include and I am unable to understand why it is necessary that they must protect and coddle the incompetent student.

As Arthur Borg, 51, was plowing on his farm south of Frankfort Monday morning about 10 o'clock, he figured in a serious accident. He had a plow attached to his tractor by a chain, and in some way the plow stuck and as he pulled the tractor forward, it reared up at the front and toppled over on him. It just missed hitting him in the head but the steering wheel and caught him across the groin and held him tight in that position.

Mr. Schilling succeeded in lifting the tractor off Mr. Borg with his equipment, and he was then taken to St. James hospital in Chicago Heights in an unconscious condition. It was found that there was a fracture of the pelvis but as X-ray pictures were not able to be taken until late Tuesday and Wednesday further details are lacking.

Mrs. Anna Olsen, a trained nurse at Batavia, came at once to stay with her brother a few days and his brother Richard of Batavia also arrived Wednesday to help with the immediate farm work, the tractor having been able to be repaired at once.

STATE CAPITAL NEWS

Barley and winter wheat are heading in southern Illinois, according to the state and federal department of agriculture. Planting of corn and soybeans is getting under way somewhat earlier than usual.

Farmers in northern Illinois were unable to sow as large an acreage of oats as they had planned, because of the wet soil, and will probably plant soybeans or corn in the space thus left over.

A new Illinois law requires every owner of a dog which is not kept in an enclosed area or on a leash, or muzzled when at large, to have such dog inoculated against rabies before June 1 of 1954 and of each year thereafter.

This reminder comes from the state Department of Agriculture which was designed by the General Assembly as the agency to enforce the anti-rabies law.

Various improvements are being made at the Illinois State fairgrounds by Manager Strother G. Jones in preparation for the 1954 fair, August 13-22.

Work now going on includes construction of a warm-up and judging ring south of the coliseum, remodeling the woman's rest room inside the coliseum, moving the horsemen's cafe at the half-mile practice track into the building formerly used as an office by the superintendent of speed, and building a hub rail along the inside rim of the practice track.

Illinois motorists who pick up young hitchhikers may be laying themselves liable to prosecution for contributing to the dependency or delinquency of a minor.

This warning comes from Phil M. Brown, Superintendent of the state highway police, who said giving rides to boys under 17 years of age or girls under 18 could result in prosecution.

He also called attention to an Illinois law forbidding any person to stand in a roadway for purpose of soliciting a ride from the driver of any private vehicle.

April oil production in Illinois averaged 177,000 barrels a day, the highest mark recorded since December, 1949, according to the state Geological Survey. Total flow for the month was estimated to be 5,322,000 barrels.

Three new pools, extensions in four pools, and two new pools in another pool were found as a result of April drilling in the oil fields.

The Illinois State Fair Horse Show will be held August 13, 14, 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20. Fifty thousand dollars will be offered in cash and trophies. More than $6,000 will be offered at the two-day Western Horse Show, August 21 and 22. Both shows will be staged in the coliseum.

Bandseeding, Plus Plant Food Gives More Hay, Extra Income

Bandseeded trefoil makes thick stand.

The soil's overall fertility backlog can be built up with broadcast applications of heavy amounts of plant food. Then at seeding time, fertilizer can be placed within easy reach of the seedlings for their immediate growth needs.

Bandseeding, or "positional fertilizing" is an effective way to give the seedling roots all the nutrients they need for early growth. Success of this method depends on placing the fertilizer directly under the seed, but not in contact with it. Then the seedlings can grab the plant food and grow.

Alfalfa and birdsfoot trefoil gave 21 per cent better stands in Michigan stands than from broadcasting alone, according to Milo B. Tesar, Michigan State College soils man. The seed was placed in a narrow band near the top of the soil above fertilizer drilled one inch deep in seven-inch rows.

Ohio soils men got full, quick growing stands of birdsfoot trefoil the first year when it was bandseeded with oats as a nurse crop. The soil had been plowed, disced and culplacked to get a firm seedbed.

J. L. Haynes, Ohio State University agronomist, reports that at oats harvesting, the trefoil was 8 to 12 inches high with a thick stand across the field. He estimated the oats would go 45 to 50 bushels per acre.

Two essentials for sturdy, vigorous growth, says the committee, are:

1—A good seedbed and careful planting methods.

2—A full feed of nutrients.

That includes the "appetizer" application that gets the young seedlings off to a quick, sturdy start as well as the "main course" that supplies all the nutrients the legumes need for sustained high-yielding growth.

400 Against One

Lesson for May 23, 1954

EVERYTHING was set for the great offensive. The cause of the war was beyond criticism, as those days went. The enemy controls one of our cities, and we aim to get it back. Armies and nations have argued like that since the beginning of history. So it looked to the two kings, Jehoshaphat and Ahab, on the eve of their military adventure in Ramoth-Gilead. That was the name of a city which had been in Israelite hands generations before this and now for some time had been under the domination of the aggressive and land-hungry country of Syria. Jehoshaphat, King of Judah, had been a strong and wise king as kings went in Judah; and Dr. Foreman even Ahab, had as his reputation in history, had been a rather strong king of Israel. These two, uniting against Syria—how could they lose?

Yes-Men

Ahab was never bothered by a conscience, but Jehoshaphat had misgivings. He sincerely wanted to know how God thought of all this. He felt in his heart that if God did not approve, the whole venture was sure to fail. So he asked his royal colleague Ahab to find out what was the word of the Lord about all this. This was Jehoshaphat's first mistake, for Ahab was the last man to know, or to want to know, the will of God. However, Ahab, being up-to-date and very rich besides, had a stable of yes-men whom he called prophets, men he hired, men who knew on which side their bread was buttered. It seems ridiculous to call such men prophets, but false prophets look and sound very much like true ones—especially when they tell us what we want to hear! So Ahab called a meeting of these yes-men and asked them the question: Shall I go to battle? Their answer was prompt, it was just what the king wanted to hear, as they well knew. What is God's will? Go, by all means. What will come of it, how will the battle go? The Lord will give it into King Ahab's hands. Two lies; perhaps the prophets knew it, perhaps not. Perhaps they did not care whether it was true or not; all they knew was that they were paid to say, and they said it. "Whom the gods destroy, they first make mad," says an ancient Roman proverb. We could revise that and not be far wrong: Whom God wishes to destroy, he first surrounds with yes-men.

Truth No Matter What

Jehoshaphat was still nervous. Unanimous opinion about a debatable question is suspicious in any language. So he asked if the king had any more prophets. Well, yes, there was one, a man named Micaiah—only you will never hear anything good from him, said Ahab. However, Micaiah was sent for, and in his coming and in what he said he put his name on the honor roll of history. Micaiah had everything against him; the vote in the Prophets' Association was 400 to 1; the king would not believe him, the war would start, and would fail, anyhow; and furthermore Micaiah himself would never be thanked for telling the truth and might end his days eating bread and water in jail. Nevertheless, Micaiah, being a true prophet, knew what the truth was, knew God's will and mind, and dared to speak it out. The world needs Micaiahs. We have many number of men who will tell the truth when it is popular, when people will believe them, when it "gets them" something.

This story shows, moreover, what a mistake it is to decide what is right and what is wrong by counting votes. Even if the vote is 400 to 1, the one man may be right. Even if Micaiah were silenced (as he was) and his "sour note"—as Ahab thought it—no longer disturbed that beautiful harmony of the 400 yes-men, they still could not make a lie true by agreeing on it. In a democratic country like ours we tend to forget this. We decide so many things by popular vote, that we come to suppose we can settle what is right and what is wrong, by popular vote. We read in a book that a great majority of people interviewed by the author do what we have always known was wrong.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

Probably next to mother-in-law jokes, the most frequent stories are built around the lady and the home builder, in which the lady from day to day so changes the plans the builder is always confused.

And that seems to fit the Washington situation.

Congressman James Van Dant states largely because of imports of cheap fuel oil from Venezuela and Dutch West Indies, U. S. coal production has dropped from 145 million tons in 1947 to 81 million tons in 1953. Coal industry employment has dropped from 100,202 to 56,668 in the same period and the trend continues.

U. S. is dumping ground for residual oils produced in these nations by big U. S. oil corporations. But Venezuela, whose residual oil is wrecking an entire American industry recently imposed a tariff duty on U. S. aluminum products up to 350 per cent.

On question of containing Communism, Today U. S. troops are stationed all over the world; thousands died in three years in Korea. U. S. Vice President states if French pull out of Indo-China, U. S. troops move in.

Yet in classic warfare, there are two grand points of strategy. One is to destroy enemy ability to produce; the other is to maintain a naval blockade. Yet Har- old Stassen, in charge of the U. S. giveaway programs tells Congress trade with Russia should be increased. This means Russia could get things she needs.

When dairy support prices © National Federation of Independent Business are lowered, government support prices on over one-third of a billion dollars worth of government owned cheese also came down about a nickel a pound.

But a long advance notice was given of this drop in prices, so cheesemakers unloaded millions of pounds to the government at the old support price, and bought it back immediately after at new lower price. Thus a profit of almost a nickel per pound was made without cheese leaving producers warehouses.

It was announced this plan was followed in hopes milk price paid farmers would not be immediately cut by the cheese makers. But with three firms controlling most of the U. S. cheese supply, milk prices were cut long before date cheese subsidy cut went into effect. They can seem pretty naive in Washington, too, at times.

Also among government surpluses are large stocks of linseed oil, vital in paintmaking. Recently the government sold 84 million pounds to European firms for 7 cents per pound.

This might be cited as an example of what free world trade means to the U. S. except for one little fly in the oil.

The oil sold by the government for 7 cents per pound, cost more than twice that amount. So U. S. taxpayers lost about $11 million on deal, still pay high prices for paint to maintain homes, farms, businesses.

So where is wonder over just what plan, if any, is being followed in Washington.

Obviously the answer is there is no plan. It is also obvious if government is going to avoid bankrupting every American, destroying every independent U. S. business, every American home, a sound business plan must be adopted soon and adhered to.

Few things are more irritating than windows that won't open, furniture drawers that stick, door locks that balk just when it's raining cats and dogs, and other things that won't function properly.

To keep our temper, on an even keel, the oil industry has sent along a few anti-sticking hints you might find handy.

With drawers, put a coat of paraffin wax on the parts which have to slide. The paraffin will provide a slippery surface which will make the drawer easy to pull out.

Cooking Thermometer Shelf

THERE is a growing trend in American kitchens to keep many utensils out in the open where they are easy to reach. This is particularly valuable in the case of often-used instruments and those which are apt to be damaged if left to roll around in a drawer with a lot of other tools. For instance, if you have a fine set of cooking thermometers, as so many good cooks do today, it is a very simple matter to construct a small, handy shelf to display them and protect them.

First take a rectangular piece of one-inch board and two rectangular pieces of Masonite-Preswood. This is a particularly versatile material which can be used for innumerable jobs around the home. The dimensions of these pieces are up to you, depending on the available space and the number of cooking thermometers you wish to display.

These two pieces will actually make two shelves. Into the piece to be used for the top, drill two small holes, into which you can insert the stainless steel stems of your roast meat thermometer and your candy-jelly-deep fat frying thermometer. The round, clock-like faces of the thermometers will prevent them from slipping through the holes, and the thermometers will be always within easy reach if you attach your shelf to the wall or cabinet near the range.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Bradley Sunday were her brother L. William Hertig and family of Great Lakes.

Many modern streamlined rail road passenger cars are completely built with a chromium nickel stainless steel framework and encased in stainless steel sheets so thin, yet so strong, that weight and operating costs are substantially reduced. Ordinary steel sheets would soon rust through—the stainless steel does not even need the protection of paint.
By ingenuity and skill in processing and constant efforts in developing the usefulness of nickel, pioneers in the Canadian nickel industry converted what was once an impurity in copper ore into a vital material for modern industry.

TREATING A "NEW" DISEASE

By Science Features

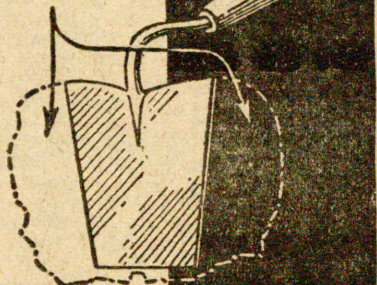

A mysterious disease called pancreatic fibrosis affects one out of 600 infants. Treated for many years, as a combination of pneumonia and an intestinal disease causing malnutrition, it almost always proved fatal to the young sufferers. Even though thousands of children were affected, pancreatic fibrosis was regarded as a "new" disease by many doctors. Finally, in 1938, Dr. Dorothy H. Andersen of Columbia University, put together the symptoms and various changes made on the body by pancreatic fibrosis, and medical science recognized the "new" disease.

Pancreatic fibrosis produces a double attack on youngsters. A heavy mucus liquid forms in the lungs causing a severe cough and hampering breathing. This condition also results in frequent infections, such as pneumonia and bronchitis. The second set of symptoms affects the pancreas and it fails to deliver its quota of enzymes to the digestive system. The children, though they eat large amounts of food, are underweight and suffer from malnutrition. As a result of medical research, better methods for treating these patients have been evolved. A series of tests on 49 patients was recently conducted for 15 months by four Boston doctors. They found that the broad-range antibiotics, such as terramycin, were the most effective in this disease, protecting the child against lung infections and at the same time stimulating his growth. With proper diet and careful treatment, the children now have a new lease on life.

Weeding Tool Can Be Made From Discarded Hoe

AN OLD garden hoe may readily be converted into a tool that can be used for weeding between rows of closely spaced vegetables. Ends of the hoe are cut off, as shown in the illustration from Popular Mechanics, and the bottom edge is trued. Either a hacksaw or cold chisel will do the job. For effective use, be sure to sharpen the edge well.

Tony Rides Again; Indianapolis Tests Lure Bettenhausen

Tony Bettenhausen, Tinley Park's answer to Barney Oldfield of racing fame, has been in Indianapolis the past two weeks getting the feel of the Speedway race track in preparation for qualifying for the Memorial Day race again this year. Tony's wife, children and father-in-law, Clyde Rice, left Friday to be with him at the beginning of the trials. The Indianapolis track has been the scene of many runs by the Tinley Park speed record breaker. Everyone joins in wishing Tony the success he so richly deserves—the winner's flag on May 30.

BIRDS GET FARM VOTE - THANKS TO SPRING

In this world of "H" bombs "C" bombs and what have you it is wonderful to see what Mother Nature can do just by bursting buds.

Spring has blossomed in the heart of one Alpine farmer who despite his need to get the soil turned and the farmland ready for crops, recently cut a new road through his clover field to keep from disturbing a bird whose nest lies in the path usually used to get to other parts of the acreage.

Another family is reported to be zealously guarding a robin that built its nest in the frame-work which supports their gas tanks and laid therein three nice eggs. Just before going to press the family reported that three baby robins made their bow into this lovely world and seem most happy and content.

Spring only proves America has a heart.

Under The Cross Of Malta

At our last regular Post meeting May 13, plans for the annual Memorial Day services were made. The usual Patriotic program at the Post Home will commence at 10 o'clock, Monday May 31st. Immediately following the program the various marching units led by the VFW Drum and Bugle corp will proceed to the cemeteries to honor our war dead. A more detailed account of the Memorial Day service will appear in this newspaper next week.

Comrade Fred Hentsch who is confined to a private hospital in Manteno is feeling much better and it is hoped he will soon be home.

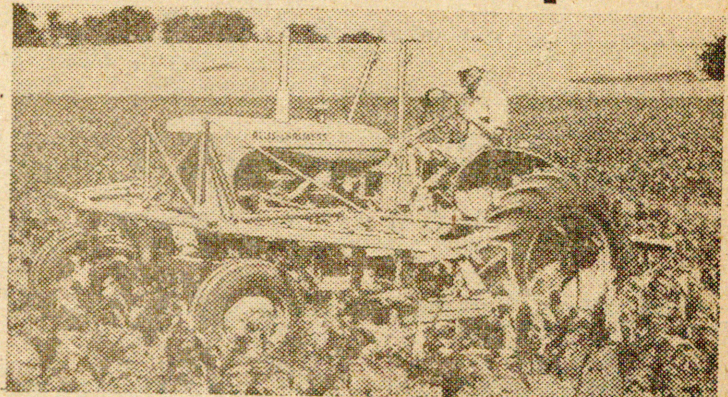

The band boys are being outfitted with new snappy uniforms and along with their constant improvement, the Post is mighty proud of the organization. The band is also a genuine asset to the whole community not only to take part in local affairs for your enjoyment, but they will travel to many other towns and communities, the VFW band from Mokena.

Also at our meeting, were two officers from the "Cooties" the fun organization of the VFW. They were Comrade Harry Gottsch, grand adjutant, Blue Island, and Comrade W. B. Corey Grand Jr. vice commander of Chicago. Each told of the purpose and duties which the Cooties were organized for, namely to help our hospitalized veterans.

The next regular Post meeting will be Thursday evening, May 27. Glenn Petersen, Post pub.

Increase Your Spread

Save Your Time

Four rows at a time with the Allis-Chalmers front-mounted cultivator for WD and WD-45 Tractors slashes your cost of weed control sharply. More acres are covered — your entire crop is cultivated quickly when it counts most.

For quick hitching, front gangs are hinged like a gate. Simply drive in. This, together with Power-Shift wheels, saves valuable get-ready time.

Big, sturdy bearings hold gangs true so there's no weed dodging. Parallel linkage assures better penetration yet permits each gang to float freely, even over rough ground.

For clean crops in less time — the Allis-Chalmers 4-row cultivator.

BABSON DISCUSSES AUTOMATIC MERCHANDISING
Babson Park, Mass., January 21, 1954. As happens every once in a while stories have been going around which portray a brilliant outlook for the automatic vending machine business. Unscrupulous promoters paint the future in most vivid colors, exaggerating the sales potential and hardly mentioning the operating costs and other problems.

This robot is essentially a supplementary salesman. Automatic vendors do well on low-cost items such as cigarettes and sell only as an accommodation. Machines eat take over the sale of such merchandise and generally show a small profit. Furthermore, they don't get into the habit of smoking "on the house" as do many employees, and they never ask for a raise or a day off!

Another rapidly growing field where the machine play a valuable role is in supplying snacks where food is not otherwise available. These machines offer factories an ideal means of providing quick-energy foods which keep both morale and efficiency high. There is then no need to "send out" or take a half-hour "walk to the corner drugstore."

But these uses, while they assure further growth to the industry, do not constitute a golden road to riches. The fact is that the average volume of sales per machine is surprisingly low. The ordinary cigarette machine (and cigarettes account for over half of all vending-machine sales) dislay. It is clear that at this rate there must be a large investment in robots in order to support a serviceman who will load, repair, and collect coins from the machines. The daily net profit for the owner is figured in fractions of pennies.

In addition, vandalism by small boys and petty thieves is an occupational hazard of the robot. It must be located where there is heavy traffic at all times, or where there is an employee doing other work. Public locations are unsatisfactory. Certainly, there is no profit if a blue-uniformed "clerk" must stand ready to defend the machine with his nightstick! This means that the further growth of such machines will come in stores where vandalism cannot occur.

Machines do not know the psychology of selling. It is a mistake therefore, to believe that they can ever take over the job of an enthusiastic clerk who has a true "sales appeal." They are able to sell only well-known, low-cost items that people already want. Products that people want to feel, or try for size, cannot yet be automatically dispensed. Also experience has shown that the average citizen hesitates to drop anything larger than a quarter in a machine; and there are few persons indeed who will deposit a dollar or more in a gadget that they are not sure will work.

Therefore, I can not now forecast that robot machines will go far toward displacing sales clerks, but they may discourage further wage raises. I do predict, however, that the extent to which the robot finally supersedes the blonde will materially depend upon advertising and packaging.

It is significant that the products which move well through automatic selling devices are well-known brands. "Dime" chains are giving them careful study in connection with "self-selection" stores. Of course, the nation's leading practical psychologists will have to devote their great experience and talent to the problem of pre-selling anything that is earmarked for quantity distribution by machines. Hence, the robot should increase newspaper advertising.

The first step will be clever packaging. And once a good design has been achieved, it must be repeatedly, day after day, year in and year out, be put before the buying public. The manufacturer who does not make full use paper advertising will not get repeat orders from vending machine operators. Therefore, I conclude that robot selling does have its place in certain stores where its place in certain stores where fully exploited. But I warn readers not to be misled; robots are now far from being mechanical gold mines.

Three out of four traffic accidents happen in clear weather on dry roads.

Seventy-two acts of Congress have been held unconstitutional. The original U. S. Supreme Court consisted of a chief and four associate justices.

ALPINE

Mrs. E. Mrosek
Orland 41-J-1

Maue PTA officers for the coming year were installed at the regular monthly meeting held at the school Wednesday evening. New officers are: Mrs. Charles Henning, president; Mrs. Chester Williams, first vice president; Mrs. Raymond Knieriem, second vice president; Mrs. Helen Lemke, third vice president; Mrs. Owen Maue, secretary; Mrs. Harwood Stellwagen, treasurer.

In the hat show which followed, Mrs. Lemke was awarded the prize of a yellow straw lappel hat after a drawing with Mrs. Strassenburg who had tied with her in guessing what song each hat represented.

The program was concluded with a social hour during which refreshments were served. Hostesses were board members.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Felsch and Patsy, were Sunday dinner guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Felsch.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Walker entertained at a party honoring the seventh birthday of their son James, Sunday. Guests were Donna and Gayle Nolan, Dolores Walker, Starr and Richy Donovan all of Chicago. Also present were their son Arthur, Steven Koveikis, Janice and Rodney Knieriem, John Stellwagen, Larry and Marvin Reeves.

News that Orville Rauch has resigned as a co-leader of the Orland Boy's 4-H club is being received with real regret. Mr. Rauch and Norman Bernard have worked together as co-leaders since Albert Lorenz, former leader, moved from the district. Both were former members, and, as leaders, have done much to bring distinction to the club. What Mr. Rauch's plans might be, other than farming, are not known but it is expected that his interests will continue to be centered in youth activities.

There will be another square dance, sponsored by the Maue PTA and directed by Robert Laing of Orland Park, at Maue school Friday, May 28 at 8 p. m. The Alpine girls 4-H club held their annual picnic in Highland Park near Joliet Saturday afternoon. During their short business session it was decided that Sharon Lauffer would be the club's candidate for queen at the 4-H fair. Sharon is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lauffer and was an achievement member last year. The girls took advantage of the occasion to present their leader, Mrs. Harwood Stellwagen, with a birthday gift as a token of their affection and appreciation. The gift was a beautiful wooden plate. One side carried her name, the name of the club and a picture of the four leaf clover which is emblematic of the 4-H pledge. On the opposite side was an etching of a pine tree with the names of all the club members inscribed within it.

Mrs. Stellwagen, who had purposely delayed the picnic date so that attention would not be drawn to her birthday, is so overcome with surprise and gratitude that she stutters when she tries to express her pride in and appreciation of her club members.

Other highlights of the picnic were a visit to the Pilcher Park green house and a field trip to the home of Mrs. William Felsch where they studied the layout of her flower garden and a visit to the home of Mrs. Stuart Culp to see her collection of indoor plants.

Mothers who provided transportation were Mrs. Stellwagen, Mrs. Owen Maue and Mrs. Henry Felsch, Mrs. Walter Lauffer and Mrs. Meier.

Maue's ball team suffered a bit of a defeat in the game played at Doctor school Friday afternoon. The loss, however, did have its compensations. Mrs. Helen Lemke, principal of Maue and who umpired the game, treated the Maue team to cold drinks before returning home.

The Primary room at Maue school concluded its Garden Seed project and prizes were awarded to Joan Stellwagen. Terry Donovan, James Walker and Larry Reeves.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lemke and Ann were dinner guests Sunday of Mrs. Lemke's mother, Mrs. Martha Nemeth at Hitz Country House. The occasion was a belated Mothers Day dinner. Other guests included Paul Lemke, Mokena; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Henry and daughters Donna Jean and Barbara of Seneca; and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nemeth and sons James, Donald Paul and Tommy. Following dinner the group went to Mokena to the Roy Lemke home where they enjoyed playing croquet and visiting. Miss Donna Jean Henry played several accordion selections.

Students at Maue school received their pictures this week with much pleasure and many mixed emotions.

CROP WEATHER REPORTS

Temperatures and the corn planting tempo advanced steadily together in the corn belt this past week. Starting May 10 soil temperatures as taken by DeKalb Seed corn weather stations in eight corn belt states, rose exactly 2 degrees daily until the end of the week. And corn planting advanced from an estimated 4 percent on Monday to 50 percent Saturday. If good planting weather continues, the bulk of the corn crop will be planted by May 20.

Planting will be finished first in the northwest Iowa area. Reports from Humboldt and Storm Lake showed planting practically completed by May 15. In this northwestern corn belt area where early fall frosts are common, planting is usually started early and rushed rapidly. Missouri and the southern two thirds of Illinois were also pushing rapidly toward completion. Ohio was the only lagging area on corn planting. Lower temperatures with some rain on Monday held back planting.

With this relatively early planting, excellent seed beds, almost universal use of hybrid seed, increased use of fertilizer, and limited compliance with acreage allotments, the United States may well be headed for another 3 billion bushel crop. Moisture, however, could still be the limiting factor as the second week of May had almost no rain fall. Current moisture deficiency over most of the corn belt is now 1 1/2 to 2 inches, so continued rainfall is still vital.

Saturday is the most dangerous day of the week for traffic. Labor unions in our land have more than five times as many members today as they had 18 years ago.

GOOD GOVT. AWARD

A tribute to good leadership in government, the Good Government Awards luncheon, sponsored by the Chicago Junior Association of Commerce and Industry, will be held in the Conrad Hilton Hotel, May 20.

The idea was conceived in 1951 and the first awards were made in the Spring of 1952 shortly after the entire Chicago area was shocked by the murder of Chicago Gross, west side political figure.

The first awards which were made to Lt. William J. Szarat head of the Chicago park district police youth bureau; Stephen Hurly, attorney and head of the Chicago Civil Service commission and the late Probate Judge William J. Waugh were applauded by leading Chicagoans as timely and helpful for stimulating thinking and action for good government.

John J. O'Brien, then president of the Jaycees and now a director of the Citizens of Greater Chicago said "Good government is only as good as its leaders and by recognizing outstanding officials and other figures we hope to help the climate for good government. We also hope to attract more qualified people to serve their government."

The luncheon on May 20 will be the third annual awards event. The judges who selected the 1952 winners and the 1953 winners (Mrs. Galeta Karr, Peabody elementary school principal and Anthony Olin, sanitary district board president) have volunteered to serve again. They are Dr. Rollin Posey, Northwestern University; Dr. C. Herman Pritchett, University of Chicago; John Larkin, Illinois Institute of Technology; and Dr. Hollis Barber, University of Illinois Navy Pier. All of the judges head or serve in the political and social science departments at their respective schools.

John D. Weber, Mt. Prospect, Ill., who founded the Good Government award as a Jaycee committee this year as chairman. He said more than 100 civic organizations have been approached for nominations for the 1954 awards. Nominations already have been received from many of them including the Citizens Civil Service Association, the Chicagoot Association of Commerce and Industry (Senior), the Better Government Association, the Welfare Council of Metropolitan Chicago, the City Club of Chicago, the Woman's City Club of Chicago, the Chicago Council, B'Nai B'Rith and the Union League Club.

This year's awards will be made in two categories: (a) an individual prominent in the public eye, such as the president of an agency, a city alderman, a mayor or other prominent individual; (b) individuals who are politically unknown, such as a school teacher, a policeman, a clerk or others not normally well known by the public.

"In selecting winners of the awards there is no consideration given to political affiliation or creed, and the awards will not constitute a political endorsement of anyone or anything," Weber said. "The Jaycees began this project in the hope of stimulating public officials to greater efforts on behalf of the people of Cook County and to bring the results of those efforts to the attention of all the people," he said.

Plaques, suitably inscribed, will be awarded the winners at the luncheon along with other prizes. Ed Sullivan, newspaperman and master off ceremonies of the "Toast of the Town" television show, will serve as master of ceremonies. The luncheon is open to the public.

ILLINOIS TAX FACTS

By George E. Mahin, Executive Secretary
Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois

A subcommittee of the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee in Washington has scheduled hearings, starting May 11, on a number of pending bills to provide federal aid to states for school construction purposes.

Illinois received $102,694,449 in federal aids in fiscal 1952 out of a total federal aid program for all states amounting to over two and one-quarter billion dollars. The Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois estimates that 7.47 percent of all federal taxes are paid from Illinois. If Illinois received back this same percentage of federal aids to state and over 44 million dollars a year in other words, to state and local governments in other states.

For every dollar that Illinois taxpayers send to Washington to help pay for federal aid programs only 60c returns home.

An example of how Illinois taxpayers' money is being used is contained in a release received today from the Taxpayers Association of New Mexico, which reads: "Recently one of the school districts in New Mexico proposed a bond issue in the amount of $450,000 for a new field house and auditorium. One of the arguments advanced in favor of the issue went as follows: The school system has applied for Federal Aid (because of Federal installations in the district) amounting to $816,000 for additional facilities, and under present Federal policies funds are not granted to communities which have not reached the limit of their bonded debt."

The federal Commission on Intergovernmental Relations, of which Meyer Kestnbaum of Chicago is now chairman, is giving priority to study off the federal aid programs in the fields of health welfare and education. In the opinion of the taxpayers' Federation of Illinois it does not make sense to set up a study commission of this kind and then push for action before the commission has had an opportunity to complete its study and present its findings.

In view of the cost to taxpayers, and the way the money is spent certainly any Illinois Senator or Representative in Congress is performing a disservice to the people of Illinois if he supports any new federal aid programs until this commission has submitted its report.

Cecil Upshaw

Cecil Upshaw, 13 year old Cairo boy wants to know why the State of Illinois, if it's going to ban fireworks, doesn't ban automobiles also for he says, they kill more people in one day than fireworks could do in a year.

Exercising his right as a free American to "express my opinion of the government," Cecil has written to Attorney General Latham Castle asking that he "reconsider" the making of fireworks taboo. Attorney General Castle in reply informed Cecil that the General Assembly passed the law prohibiting fireworks and that his job as Attorney General is merely to advise local law enforcement officials as to its provisions.

Cecil is a firm believer in bang-bang celebrations of Independence Day. "Have you forgotten that you were once a boy?" he asked in his letter to Attorney General Castle. "Just because someone burned their fingers you prohibit fireworks. I wonder what our forefathers would think if they could see us snubbing the longed-for day for which they fought that other generations after them might be free?"

"I think," Cecil wrote, "I am entitled as an American citizen to write to you and express my opinion of the government. "I mentioned before if a person maybe burned his or her finger But think of the fun they had burning it. I look forward from one Fourth of July to the other just so I can celebrate that grand day which occurred in 1776. I and the rest of the people wish you would reconsider. Well, maybe you think someone will be killed. O. if that is true how come you don't prohibit the use of automobiles in the state of Illinois. They kill more people in one day than fireworks could do in a year.

"Please, Mr. Attorney, won't you reconsider for the sake of the generations of the million years to come?"

FREE BOOKLET ON SOCIAL SECURITY

During 1953, almost 600,000 men and women retired from their work and began to receive monthly payments under the old-age and survivors insurance system, according to Mr. Joseph B. Harper, manager of the Harvey Illinois social security office.

This increase, Mr. Harper said, points up two facts: There is a steady increase in the number of aged persons in relation to our total population; and, the number of persons entitled to old-age benefits is rapidly increasing as the program approaches maturity. Thirty-six million people in the United States are now over 50 years old and 13 million are over 65. Four out of each five persons of the 36 million over age 50 are employed in work covered by the present social security program.

The program will protect more and more people as years pass and social security benefits will be an important factor in financial status of these workers and their families, after workers retirement.

Planned retirement — either elected by the workers, or forced by the employer, the worker's health or other reason — is much simpler. Mr. Harper added if the worker can estimate the amount he and his family will have from the social security program. The estimate can be made, he said, by the use of a free booklet, OASI-30, "How to Estimate Social Security Payments" which can be obtained at any social security office.
